Every Woman Every Child Social Media Relay—UNGA 71

Celebrating a movement for women’s, children’s and adolescents’ health and wellbeing

Survive is a central feature of the Global Strategy, representing the aim to end all preventable deaths, as well as stillbirths by 2030.

Key targets include the reduction of global maternal, newborn, under-five and premature deaths, as well as promote mental health and wellbeing in every country. It also includes ending epidemics of HIV, tuberculosis, malaria, neglected tropical diseases and other communicable and noncommunicable diseases.

As the MDG era drew to a close, the annual death toll remained unacceptably high: 289,000 maternal deaths, 2.6 million stillbirths, 5.9 million deaths in children under the age of five—including 2.7 million newborn deaths—and 1.3 million adolescent deaths. Most of these deaths could have been prevented. Many more people suffer illness and disability and fail to reach their full potential, resulting in enormous loss and costs for countries, both today and for future generations.
